FUGITIVE FOR 15 YEARS BEGS FOR CLEMENCY

Asks Governor Of Colorado To Free
Him To Face Another Sentence.

PROVED SUCCESS IN CLEVELAND

Denver, Jan. 24 (AP).—After making a dramatic plea before Governor Johnson for a pardon, Glenn Smeeman, Colorado fugitive who became a prosperous business man in Cleveland, returned to the state penitentiary at Canon City Monday to await the executive's decision.

In taking the case under advisement, Governor Johnson said he would not act until after he had received reports from Prison Warden Roy Best and the board of corrections.

Full of expectation that his application would be granted and he would be allowed to return to St. Louis to face a two-year prison term for auto theft, Smeeman appeared before the governor with his attorney, F. E. Dickerson.

Escaped In 1918

Smeeman was serving a three-year-and-one-month sentence for auto theft when he escaped from a prison road gang in 118. He was convicted in Denver in 1917. Before coming to Denver he jumped a $2,000 bond in St. Louis, where he had appealed from a conviction on a similar charge.

The prisoner wept at reference to his young and attractive wife, who was not present at the hearing.

If the pardon is granted, sheriff's deputies will be sent from St. Louis to return him there. St. Louis authorities said he would be delivered to the state penitentiary at Jefferson City.

Under the guidance of his attorney, Smeeman traced his life from the time his father died in Colorado and his stepmother deserted himself and brother, George A. Bronson, until he surrendered in Ohio and volunteered to come west to clear the sentence.

Many Endorsements

Stacks of letters and telegrams from ministers, lawyers, judges and other persons scattered throughout the United States urging executive clemency were given Governor Johnson by Dickerson, who pleaded that Smeeman's fifteen years of good citizenship "the debt to society had been paid."

John De Paul, Torrington (Wyo.) music instructor, testified at the hearing he owed his musical education to Smeeman and Bronson, who also had served a term in the Colorado prison for auto theft.

T. J. Tynan, former warden, testified Smeeman had been a model prisoner and that he had placed him on the road gang in an effort to rebuild Smeeman's declining health.

Clark, indicted former clerk of the Montgomery board of commissioners, had transferred certain funds from the clerk's account to his personal account was given here today in the trial of Clark on embezzlement charges by George P. Raids Indicate Route Of Big
Offensive Awaited In Province Of Jehol.

(By the A. P.)

Japanese military planes bombarded the city of Kailu, northeastern Jehol city, yesterday for the fifth time in less than two weeks. The raids indicated the long awaited Japanese offensive into that province might follow over that route.

Chinese leaders held military conferences at Nanking. Marshal Tuan Chi-Jui, former rebel leader and former president, countered reports that he was still friendly with the Japanese by joining in a united front.

Marshal Chang Hsiao-Liang, north China commander, returned to Beijing from the Nanking parley. More of his troops were reported heading toward Shanhaikwan.

Japanese reports disclosed that a Japanese garrison has been established at Chaoyang, second largest city in Jehol, and last night repelled an attack by an unidentified Chinese force after an hour's hard fighting.

Barnes exhibited the snake to disbelievers in Gettysburg, Monday afternoon. The reptile measured more than four feet.

Murder Suspect Crashes Window On Speeding Train and Escapes

New Orleans, Jan. 24 (AP).—Using his head and elbow as a battering ram, Stanley Anderson, St. Louis underworld character known as "The Swede," hurled himself through a plate-glass window on a speeding Pullman train and escaped from two United States marshals who were bringing him here to face a charge of murder.

Although the train was moving at forty miles an hour at the time, Anderson apparently was not seriously injured. His cap was found in the midst of splintered glass by the side of the right of way, and a negro woman said she saw a man answering the Swede's description walk away quickly after the train passed. Later, officers received a report the same man was seen to hitch-hike a ride in a car traveling toward Baton Rouge. Officers believed confederates might have been waiting nearby through a prearranged plan. United States Mar-

COURT UPHOLDS YOUTH'S STAND

University Of Maryland Student Wins Action Opposing Military Training.

Baltimore, Jan. 24 (AP).—A Maryland judge today upheld a university student in his refusal to take military training.

Circuit Judge Joseph Ulman held that to force Enis Coale, University of Maryland student, to take the military course despite religious objection was an imposition of a religious test in violation of the state constitution.

Coale was one of two students dropped from college because of his stand. Wayne L. Lees, of Washington, the other, also seeks reinstatement in the school through court action.

"The petitioner," Judge Ulman held, "in sincere in his religious conscientious objection. Perhaps he is fanatical. Certainly he is one of a small minority of the youth of America."

Coale, whose home is near Churchville, Maryland, declared in the trial his Methodist Episcopal training caused him to oppose military training. He testified he had conscientious scruples against warfare or preparations for war.

SEEK TO FORCE FORD TO TALK

Two Petitions In Detroit
Court; One Seeks To Quash,
The Other Seeks Action.

Detroit, Jan. 24 (AP).—Circuit Judge Harry J. Dingman today refused to act on a petition by attorneys for a bench warrant compelling Henry Ford to appear for testimony until a previous petition by opposing counsel in another court has been acted on.

Kenneth M. Stevens, attorney for the Sweeten automobile company, of Philadelphia, plaintiff, sought the bench warrant after Ford failed to appear yesterday in answer to a summons. Ford attorneys had previously filed a motion to quash the subpoena served on the motor manufacturer who has not appeared personally in court since 1919.

Judge Dingman said he could not rule on the request for the bench warrant until Circuit Judge Guy A. Miller ruled on the petition to quash the subpoena which Ford attorneys say is invalid.

The Sweeten company is seeking testimony from Ford in a $227,000 action against his company involving the old Lincoln motor car company purchased in 1922 by Ford and his son, Edsel.

RELIEF MONEY CAN BE USED TO BUY FUEL

Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson Outlines New Provisions Of Aid
For Jobless.

EXTRA TIME IS GIVEN FOR FUEL

Borough and township committees of the Adams county emergency relief board held a meeting at the court house, Monday evening and heard Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, chairman of the board, explain the latest provisions of the work relief system.

In addition to the food relief now being given for work done on local projects, Doctor Hanson explained that fuel has been made available in necessitous cases. No overtime is allowed for food relief, the chairman said, except where fuel is needed. Then a man may work for fuel at the rate of a half ton of coal or one cord of wood a month. Pay will be based on the same scale as food.

The purpose of the act, however, is to provide food for the hungry, and eligibility for work will be determined on that basis alone, the chairman said.

Scale of Pay
The number of days a man may work on local projects for food orders was listed as follows:

Single man or one in a family, one day a week; two in a family, one and a half days; three in a family, two days; four in a family, three days; eight and over in a family, an additional man in the family may work one day a week.

The committees were praised by Doctor Hanson for the manner in which they have cooperated in the work relief projects. He said the county has been praised by the state emergency relief board for its efforts in helping the unemployed in the county this winter.

ARSON CASE IS NEARING CLOSE IN COURT TODAY

Closing Arguments
Begun Before Judge
McPherson At 2 O'clock.

GRAND JURORS FINISH WORK

Closing arguments in the case against Raymond S. Eberly, of Harrisburg, charged with arson, began in court at 2 o'clock this afternoon, with District Attorney John P. Butt speaking finally for the commonwealth and W. Clarence Shelly, Esq., for the defendant.

The case has been on trial before Judge Donald P. McPherson and a jury since Monday afternoon. The state claims that Eberly set fire to a truckload of furniture near a cottage at W.-D. Pine lodge on the early morning of July 16, 1932, with intent to defraud an insurance company.

Eberly, who was on the stand the greater part of this forenoon, claimed that the furniture was ignited by a defective exhaust pipe when he attempted to start the engine. The truck and its cargo was covered with $2,750 insurance.

True bills were returned by the grand jury, which concluded its consideration of indictments this morning, against the following:

Raymond S. Eberly, arson; Harry Fogle, assault and battery and aggravated assault and battery; George E. McSherry and John W. Pohlman, illegal possession and transportation of liquor; Edgar Snyder, breaking, entering and larceny; Bernard Noel, assault and battery; John Miller, breaking, entering and larceny; Alphonsus C. Neiderer, fraudulent conversion; Walter D. Rickard, operating a car while under the influence of liquor; Harry T. Shriver, operating a car while under the influence of liquor; Richard B. Gibney, fraudulent conversion, and Clarence Wazaman, illegal possession and transportation of liquor, and operating a car while under the influence of liquor.

The grand jury ignored the indictment of Mrs. Annie Sharrar, charged with the larceny of cabbage from her husband, George Sharrar, Franklin township.

Having completed its consideration of indictments, Dr. W. E. Tilberg, foreman, took the grand jurors on a tour of inspection at the Adams county jail and the county home. The jury's report on these two visitations had not been given to the court at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Baby Born With Closed Esophagus Passes Away Today

Halsbruck, Heights, N. J., Jan. 24 (AP).—Little Helen Marie Taylor, the baby born with a closed esophagus, died today.

The baby previously had been given "only one chance in a thousand" to survive.

After she was born last Friday, nurses noted that whenever she was given nourishment she choked and her face turned blue. Dr. William J. Greenfield found that the esophagus or gullet, the tube through which food is carried to the stomach, was closed at the third rib.

Five physicians performed an emergency operation yesterday inserting a tube through the abdomen to permit artificial breathing. Previously the child had been nourished by an injection of sugar and water.

A Bit Of White Adds Spring Note To Winter Togs

By Rita Ferris (Associated Press Fashion Editor) Paris (AP).—"A little touch of white" is the fashion world's latest offering to give a springtime note to late winter wardrobes.

Dark wool morning frocks and ensembles, afternoon clothes and evening togs alike are lightened by a bit of white which varies all the way from washable pique to costly ermine. Old fashioned Irish crochet collars and cuffs, white silk vests and white angora scarfs are other offerings.

Black and dark blue are the favorite backgrounds for these white touches, since they offer greater possibilities of contrast, although brown and gray often are accented in the same manner.

Make Suggestions For Safe Driving

Some suggestions for safe winter driving were made today by the governor's committee on street and highway safety.

The safe rule to follow on a very slippery road surface, the committee suggests, is to go slow, and take time to be safe, thereby avoiding the use of brakes as much as possible. If all wheels are rolling, the car can be kept under control.

Go into second or low before descending a very icy hill. This allows the driver to use the braking power of his motor and save the brakes for emergencies. This is good advice whether the hill is slippery or not.

WAR DEBT DOOR IS WIDE OPEN

Nations Who Paid December Installments To Be Given New Hearings.

Washington, Jan. 24 (AP).—The debt discussion door was thrown wide open today by the incoming Roosevelt administration to all debtor powers which are not in default on their December 15 payment.

The invitation to Premier Mussolini which was announced today in Rome was extended by Secretary Stimson yesterday on behalf of the president-elect and is similar to that given Great Britain, several days ago.

An invitation is expected to be given shortly to Czechoslovakia, Finland, Latvia and Lithuania, the only other debtors which stand in the preferred class with Great Britain because of their payment on December 15.

No official announcement has been made as to the Roosevelt attitude toward the defaulting powers headed by France and including Belgium, Poland and Estonia.

While there have been intimations that these powers eventually will be given hearings the impression prevails that the prompt payers will have first consideration.

FIRE SWEEPS MANSION

Allentown, Jan. 24.—A $50,000 blaze gutted the beautiful mansion of Adolph P. Schneider, prominent manufacturer and clubman of this city, at Lanark, on the Philadelphia pike Monday.

A short circuit was given as the cause. The structure stood in the midst of a wide estate to the south of the Lehigh mountains, and because of the fact that there was little water available, the entire interior was destroyed before firemen could subdue the flames.

CALLS POLICE TO SAVE SHINE

Reading, Jan. 24 (AP).—Bravery may bring heroes their medals but at least two Reading policemen are of the opinion that forbearance, at times, deserves recognition. It seems a voice come over the headquarters telephone Monday in the early morning hours saying, "someone's screaming for help in the woods, like murder."

Desk Sergeant Pierce Clark jumped to action. A siren wailed and two crack members of the homicide squad jumped from their side-car motorcycle to wade cautiously through ankle-deep mud toward an automobile parked at the city's outskirts. "Help, help," said a man's voice inside.

In the front seat they found a girl and, esconced comfortably beside her, a youth from whom the terrifying calls for aid were coming from leisurely puffs from a cigaret. "What's the matter?" chorused the police.

"My car's stuck in the mud," was the reply.

"Why don't you get someone to pull you out?"

With a yawn and the flick of an ash, the youth replied, "I don't want to get my feet muddy."

DEFEATED SOLONS STILL ABLE TO MEET

Washington, Jan. 24 (AP).—Though aimed to do away with legislation by defeated congressmen, the twentieth amendment carries no specific prohibition against it, and it does permit the barest chance of a defeated congress meeting. This could come about in two ways: First, the second regular session of a congress could continue straight through campaign season and election time. One chance in a thousand of that.

Second, after the election, which is never earlier than November 2 and never later than November 8, the president could call a special session. This would be forced to adjourn by noon, January 3. Only the most extraordinary circumstances, involving virtually unanimous support in congress for the president's purpose, would permit such a move.

BANDITS BEAT WOMAN, 61, AND LEAVE WITH NICKEL

York, Jan. 24 (AP).—Mrs. Lizzie Knisely, 61, a widow, who resides in a small house along the Pennsylvania railroad between Hallam and Wrightsville, was severely beaten by three negroes and two white men who demanded that she give them $50.

They left her almost helpless and cut and bruised after taking a single nickel, all the money she had at the time. She suffered the loss of several teeth, cuts on the neck, face and body, severely bruised limbs, where she was kicked by one of the men, and other wounds.

Japanese Diet Is Warned To Better U. S. Relations

Tokio, Jan. 24 (AP).—The spokesman for one of Japan's principal political parties declared in the Diet Monday that unless relations between Japan and the United States were improved they would produce renewed armaments competition and possibly a world war.

This statement was made by Hitoshi, Ashida, formally chosen spokesman for the Seiyukai party, who delivered the holdest criticism of the current military domination of Japanese diplomacy heard in parliament since the Manchurian conflict began in September, 1931.

In response to Mr. Ashida's assertion that "a gloomy situation" rules relations between Japan and America, the foreign minister, Count Uchida, declared that "there is no uneasiness concerning our relations with the United States."

Rising in the diet to question the government concerning its foreign policy, Mr. Ashida pointed out that when the foreign minister addressed parliament Saturday he did not mention American relations, which Mr. Ashida considered "were not in a condition warranting contentment."

The Seiyukai spokesman questioned the desirability of the army's

MAN STABBED; WIFE IS HELD

Woman Claims Her Husband Wielded Knife; Says She Put Him To Bed.

Philadelphia, Jan. 24.—Stabbed to death, Francis A. Quinlan, 28, was found in bed at his home, 5415 Harlan street, near 54th and Master streets, Monday afternoon.

Although his wife told police that Quinlan had stabbed himself in the chest with a bread knife and that she, thinking his wounds were not serious, had put him to bed. Sergeant Frank A. Chopinski, of the homicide squad, announced that it was a case of murder.

According to her story, told to detectives, Mrs. Quinlan said that the stabbing was at 10 a. m. In the afternoon, she continued, she went to the bedroom and saw that her husband was not breathing. Then she summoned Dr. G. F. Sheppard, whom she told her husband had committed suicide.

Dr. Sheppard telephoned the corner's office and Captain Harry Healey, of the homicide squad was notified. After questioning Mrs. Quinlan at her home, Captain Healey took her to the 61st and Thomas streets police station for further investigation.

Detectives said that Mrs. Quinlan said her husband came into the kitchen while she was getting breakfast ready and said:

"Never mind breakfast. Let's have a drink."

He took the drink, then picked up the bread knife and said, "I might as well finish it all," according to the woman's first story. She continued:

"I didn't think he was seriously hurt, so I put him to bed and intended to take care of him myself. When I went to his room in the afternoon and saw that he wasn't moving, I called the doctor."

Deputy Coroner Ruby Kaplan ordered the body taken to the morgue to be held for an autopsy by Dr. William S. Wadsworth, coroner's physician.

BLOW YORK CO. SAFE, ESCAPE WITH $465

York, Jan. 24 (AP).—Theft of $465 in checks and cash from a safe in Samuel M. Fife's store at Airville was discovered Sunday by a clerk as he entered to attend the fire in a stove.

The fact that the safe was demolished was taken to indicate that a heavy charge of nitroglycerine had been used. The robbers took $200 in cash, $200 in checks, and $15 in change, belonging to the storekeeper, and $50 in cash belonging to the post office, but overlooked $175 in an envelope. Entrance was gained through a window.

LOCAL CAGERS LACE LEGION

Wings Trounce Martinsburg Dribblers 61-20 In Easy Fashion.

Bombarding the nets for twenty-eight field goals and five fouls, the Gettysburg Fleet-Wings hung up their easiest victory of the season here Monday night by trouncing the American Legion quintet of Martinsburg, 61-20.

The visitors never had a chance and the only thing that can be said for them is that they fought gamely against overwhelming odds.

Reilly started the massacre with a foul. Seely followed with a pair, Witmer looped another and Seely located again. Reilly sunk two more to give the Wings a 14-0 advantage before Gudekunst broke the ice for the visitors with a foul shot. The quarter ended, 14-1. The Wings boosted their score to 24-1 before Criswell netted a long shot for the legion's first goal. At half time the locals led, 32-8.

Throughout the second half the gammen scored at will, their speedy passing and shooting completely bewildering the foe.

Thursday night the Wings will meet the speedy St. Mary's club of York on the local boards. This tilt is for the benefit of the Boy Scouts.

The Varsity Barbers continued their drive toward the championship of the Adams county league by walloping Biglerville in the preliminary fracas, 50-32. At half time the Barbers were out in front, 23-9.

RURAL CARRIER ENDS OWN LIFE

Bucks County Man Rests Chin On Shotgun And Then Pushes Trigger.

Doylestown, Jan. 24.—Three hours after he had been admitted to the Abington Memorial hospital with the major portion of his lower jaw shot away, Mahlon Sassaman, 26, of Ottsville, Bucks county, farmer and rural mail carrier, died Monday afternoon.

Corporal W. P. Snyder, of the Doylestown sub-station of state police, who was called to the Sassaman farm shortly after 10 o'clock Monday morning, found that Sassaman had tried to kill himself with a shotgun which belonged to his father, William Sassaman. It was a specially made gun with a short barrel and stock.

Sassaman placed the gunstock on the floor, rested his chin on the end of the barrel and pulled the trigger. Part of the discharge lodged in the ceiling of the room.

Mary Snive, housekeeper, was the only other person in the house at the time. When she heard the report of the gun she investigated and called help.

Sassaman, whose brother, Roscoe, was drowned in the Delaware river two years ago when his car plunged down an embankment, was rushed to the Doylestown hospital, given first aid and transferred to Abington hospital.

He was unmarried. No motive for suicide could be given by Sassaman's father. State police say Sassaman was preparing to leave to deliver mail a short time before the shooting.

"THE GREEN PASTURES"

Marc Connelly's "The Green Pastures," the most talked of production of the last quarter century, will be at Ford's Theater, Baltimore, for a week's engagement commencing Monday evening, February 6. The company and production that played through a year and six months in New York, and for five months in Chicago, will be seen in the play. Lawrence Rivers, Inc., otherwise Rowland Stebbins, venturesome Wall Street broker, is the producer.

Connelly found the basis for his play in Roark Bradford's collection of Negro stories, "Ol' Man Adam and His Chillin'." But Connelly has performed a miracle, changing the humor, mayhap touched with satire, of Roark Bradford's book into tender, reverent, beautiful treatment of the stories told in Genesis and other books of the Bible.

Iowa To Operate Two Periled Banks Under Law Aimed To Save Assets

Des Moines, Jan. 24 (AP).—A new Iowa law authorizing the state banking superintendent to take over the operation of state banks was invoked for the first time Monday.

The Mount Ayr State bank and the Benton Savings bank, both in Ringgold county, requested the aid of Superintendent L. A. Andrew, under whose jurisdiction they may be operated without going into receivership.

The new law, rushed through both houses of the general assembly last Friday, specifies that the banking superintendent shall be in charge for one year, although the time may be extended with the approval of the state executive council.

Andrew said that in the case of the two banks taken over no withdrawals will be permitted at the present time. He added, however, that if sufficient cash became available later, it would be made available to depositors on a pro rata basis.

New deposits will be accepted

Buying Barbara

By Julia Cleft-Addams

SYNOPSIS: Mark Lodely, arrogant young artist, arbitrarily summons his fiancée Barbara Quentin to him in London. She arrives in the midst of a gay party he is giving; he not only does not ask her in, but makes a malicious caricature of her to show his guests. Barbara flees to a hotel. Mark's party as well as his living, is paid for by Farrell Armitage, in whose house Mark is staying. Farrell endures Mark in the hope that when he had made him a successful artist Barbara will lose her pity, and her love, for Mark, and marry Mark's benefactor.

Chapter 38

BARBARA'S LETTER

Barbara woke, as she always did, with all senses alert. She looked round the severe hotel bedroom and remembered how she had rung and knocked her way into it in the early hours of this morning. The Clanciarde had not been eager to accommodate her, but she had luggage and she had money and a friendly policeman had stood at her shoulder while she parleyed with the night-porter.

"In fact," said Barbara to herself, "there is nothing of the stray cat about me and I'm not going to mew to order. Not for anybody."

She had slept only a few hours but she felt refreshed; cool and clear-sighted. Somehow she had come to a conclusion and hammered out a purpose. She rose and made an unhurried toilet. She knew that her outfit became her when she inspected herself in the mirror and she knew it again when she entered the breakfast-room. People turned to watch her seat herself and the headwaiter attended to her in person.

After breakfast she found the writing room and sat straight down to the letter which had composed itself in her mind without, apparently, thought or effort on her part. When it was written she saw no cause to alter a line of it. It was to Farrell Armitage.

"I was in your house last night and I heard what you said when you watched Mark. You said 'Shows him up pretty plainly'—but I think it is you who are shown up. I think it is you who are shown to be despicable, far, than Mark."

"Our bargain was not that you should 'show him up.' Mark is weak and inexperienced in spite of his mature manner and it is easy to lead him into indulging the worst, instead of the best, that is in him. Last night proves nothing. Our bargain was that for a year you would take him and give him every chance to become independent—independent of any kind of help he could possibly want from me. Perhaps you saw that what you set out to do is not possible and so, instead, you betrayed him into vulgarity so as to make me hate him."

"I don't hate him for being as he was last night. I feel more than ever that he needs me to get him back to what sanity and dignity he had before you took him away. I shall marry him as soon as it can be arranged. You have broken your part of the bargain. Now I break mine—Barbara Quentin."

She sealed and addressed the letter and took it out to the main hall. "Please have this sent at once by special messenger."

She put on hat and furs, went out and found a telephone box. As soon as she was in communication with Farrell's house she asked for Mark, adding—"Please put me straight through to him. It is very important that I should speak to him at once."

"Mr. Lodely is probably still asleep, madam."

"I can't help that. He must wake up."

She waited for what seemed a very long time. Then Mark's voice said, so abruptly that she started: "I told you that you were not to ring me up any more before mid-day."

"What's that?" she exclaimed.

"You are Patsy, aren't you?"

Mark's voice was drowsy.

"This is Barbara speaking, Mark."

"Barbara! Good heavens, I thought you were in Toketer!"

This she sensed to be false. She said steadily—

"I want to see you immediately."

"Well, why waste time 'phoning me? I'm in bed. I can't refuse to see you, except by hiding under the bedclothes."

"You must please get up and take a taxi to—the porch of the National Gallery. I shall be waiting for you. We can have lunch together somewhere, later on."

"I never lunch."

Barbara hesitated. In what she had come to call the old days she would at this point have humored him or conceded her point. But that had grown impossible to her.

"We can decide about lunching later. I shall expect you to meet me."

There was silence. After a moment a voice asked whether she had finished, please, and she realized that Mark had rung off.

She gave him five minutes, then got through to the house again and again insisted on being put into communication with him. Unless Mark took off his receiver, this game might well go on all day.

"Hello?"

Mark had not expected her to persist, evidently.

"I shall go on ringing up this house until I hear that you have started, Mark."

"But why don't you come here, Barbara? Beautiful, obstinate Barbara—"

"But I prefer not to. I won't wait longer than an hour. I shall find a telephone box and ring you up again if you aren't at the National Gallery by eleven."

This time it was she who rang off. She believed that he would be there.

She set out on foot for their meeting-place. It was a lovely November day, warm as spring in the sunshine, keenly cold in the shadow. She swung eastwards, enjoying, in spite of her preoccupations, the sights and sounds of what she had always in her childhood called London Town.

It was a relief to have made up her mind about Farrell Armitage once and for all. The man was a cheat. He had laid down the rules of contest and had gone outside them. No doubt he had built up his fortune in just such ways. Well, that was no concern of hers. Her concern was Mark's safety; what old-fashioned people would call his soul.

Insurance Fund Pays $2,160,000

More than 9,000 checks of varying amounts totaling nearly $2,160,000 were mailed by the state workman's insurance fund in 1932 to industrial accident victims, their widows and children or other dependents according to the report of L. S. Kishbaugh, chief of the claim division of the fund, to Dr. A. M. Northrup, secretary of labor and industry.

In fatal cases, more than 900 widows, nearly 3400 children and 240 mothers and fathers, who might otherwise have been left dependent on charity, received compensation amounting to a total of $665,317 which was $20,156 less than was expended in 1931. This does not include medical or funeral expenses. Medical expenses amounted to more than $527,245.85, which was $94,726.40 less than last year, and funeral expenses close to $25,000, a decrease of $5,357 over 1931.

During 1932, there were 145 fatal accidents in commercial establishments and coal mines insured with the state workmen's insurance fund. Less than half of these occurred in the coal industry. Of the 27,606 non-fatal accidents more than one-third were mine accidents. A total of $2,709,886 was paid out in 1932 for all compensation, including fatal and non-fatal cases, medical, funeral, and legal expenses. HOOVER OFFERS RAPIDAN CAMP TO SUCCESSORS

Camp Recreation Offered Needed Rest; Roosevelt Prefers The Sea.

By Herbert Plummer

Washington—President Hoover's gift of his Rapidan camp to the state of Virginia, with the request that it be held for the use of his successors if they desire, is another expression of how much that mountain retreat has lightened his four years in the White House.

"I have discovered," he once said about the Rapidan, "that even the work of government can be improved by leisurely discussions under the trees where no bells ring or callers jar one's thoughts from the channels of urbanity. . . ."

That is the reason why he grabbed at every opportunity to retire to the mountains over the week-end; why he would defy rain, slippery roads—in fact, all sorts of weather—to get there.

Many times those trips were not made, as so many thought, for the purpose of fishing. The fishing season on the Rapidan lasts but a short time in the spring.

They were made, as he himself has said, "as an excuse for return to the woods and streams."

Roosevelt Prefers Sea

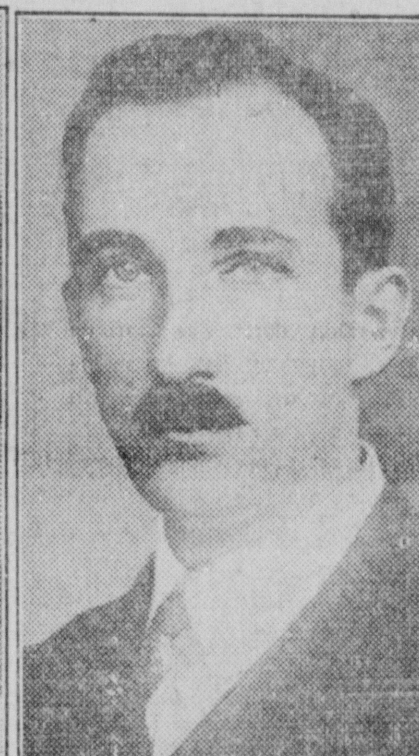

The chances, however, of his immediate successor using the camp would seem remote. President-elect Roosevelt never has demonstrated a fondness for that sort of recreation.

He has found his escape in other surroundings—aboard a ship cruising lazily out to sea, or in warmish water swimming for hours. Like Mr. Hoover he will find it necessary to chuck it all and get away from the cares of the White House. But it is safe to say that he will choose the deck of a yacht or the warm health-restoring springs of Georgia to mountain woods and streams.

All of which gives rise to another thought. In donating the camp, the President stated that if future occupants of the White House do not wish to avail themselves of it, he desires that it be made a part of the Shenandoah national park.

In that event it will be thrown open to the public.

PARENTS OF NEW PRINCESS

Their first child, a daughter, was born in Sofia to King Boris III and Queen Joanna of Bulgaria. Although Bulgaria's constitution prescribes direct succession by the male line, the princess was welcomed by the country with a warmth of affection. The mother, a former Italian princess, and King Boris were married two years ago. (Associated Press Photo)

To Withdraw Guard

The marine guard that has so successfully barred the entrance of outsiders to the Rapidan will be withdrawn. Even the newspapermen, who have been "covering" the presidential excursions to the Rapidan for the past four years from a distance of some 10 miles away, will be able to get up to the camp.

The log upon which Premier MacDonald of Great Britain and the President sat and formulated plans for the London naval arms conference, the miniature dams built by cabinet members and other distinguished guests, "Town Hall"—in fact, the scenes around which center some of the most important events of the four years of Herbert Hoover's administration may then be seen for the first time.

The lowly tourist with the rattle and bang old auto may be "a guest at the Rapidan" if he can only climb the mountain.

Coast Official Urges Bartering Of Players

San Francisco (AP).—The Pacific coast league may go back to the days of barter and trade as a means of stimulating interest in baseball without the necessity of cash outlays.

In a letter to other directors, Charles Graham, vice president of the San Francisco Seals, proposed the eight clubs exchange players in wholesale lots, thus providing new faces for the lineups.

Graham suggested the clubs exchange lists of players they would be willing to trade. The Seals' official said three players should be available for trading purposes on each club.

LONE APPLICANT NAMED

Palo Alto, Calif. (AP).—Fifty-three football coaches from all sections of the country were reported to be applicants to succeed Glenn S. "Pop" Warner, of Stanford, resigned. But when the board of athletic control met to consider a new coach the only formal application at hand was that of C. E. "Tiny" Thornhill, assistant to Warner for eleven seasons. He got the job.

MAY PAY LESS TIMBER TAXES

Owners May Have Land Classified As Auxiliary Forest Reserve; Pay Less Tax.

How timberland owners burdened with high taxes find relief without sacrificing their properties was explained today by Secretary Lewis E. Staley of the department of forests and waters. He reports that 45,470 acres of woodland in Pennsylvania have been classified as auxiliary forest reserves, permitting the assessment of these lands at not more than $1.00 per acre. Any owner wishing to classify his woodland as an auxiliary forest reserve should notify the secretary of forests and waters at Harrisburg. A blank form will be sent asking for the necessary data. Upon receipt of the application the property will be examined by a forester. If the secretary decides that the tract should be classed as an auxiliary forest reserve, a certificate to that effect will be sent to the commissioners of the county.

The local township assessors will assess the land as before, but upon receipt of the assessment returns the commissioners will reduce the amount of the assessment of these lands to a sum not exceeding $1.00 per acre.

When the trees have reached merchantable size and before any cutting is done, the owner is required to give bond to the county treasurer to 20 per cent of the estimated value of the timber to be harvested. When the timber is cut 10 per cent of the stumpage value must be paid by the owner to the county treasurer in lieu of annual taxes on the property.

Title Cage Teams Habit With Him

Pittsburg, Kas. (AP).—The championship habit has a firm grip on Ernie Schmidt, center on the state teachers' college basketball team here.

For six straight years Schmidt has played on championship hardwood outfits, and each year has captured individual scoring honors. The first three years were with the Winfield, Kansas, high school team, thrice state champion.

His first three years with the Pedagogues here have produced championships for Ernie's collection (freshmen are allowed to play on the varsity), and he hopes to make it a "lucky seven" before he finishes his college competition.

COACH BELIEVES IN MUSIC

Cleveland, O. (AP).—Coach Carl Brubaker, of Shaker Heights, believes there is power in music. He helped pay his way through Ohio Wesleyan by playing the violin at dances and intended to make his livelihood as a musician after college. Coaching interfered with that, but before every game Shaker Heights teams are rounded up to sing the school song.

There are other good cigarettes, of course.

TO TELL you that Chesterfield is the only good cigarette . . . that the makers of Chesterfield Cigarettes are the only ones who can buy good tobaccos and manufacture cigarettes scientifically . . . would be nothing short of foolish.

For all tobacco is sold in open auctions—where anyone can buy if he will pay the price. Even the machines on which different cigarettes are made are alike.

This much, however, is true: By using the right kinds of Turkish and Domestic tobaccos in just the right proportions . . . by blending and cross-blending them together in the most careful way . . . we make Chesterfield what smokers say it is . . . a cigarette that's milder, that tastes better. Just try them.

Read The Bible With Us Daily

In the year that king Uzziah died
I saw also the Lord sitting upon a throne, high and lifted up, and his train filled the temple.

each one had six wings; with twain he covered his face, and with twain he covered his feet, and with twain he did fly.

And one cried unto another, and said, Holy, holy, holy, is the Lord of hosts: the whole earth is full of his glory.

And the posts of the door moved at the voice of him that cried, and the house was filled with smoke.

Then said I, Woe is me! for I am undone; because I am a man of unclean lips, and I dwell in the midst of a people of unclean lips;
for mine eyes have seen the King,
the Lord of hosts.

Then flew one of the seraphim unto me, having a live coal in his hand, which he had taken with the tongs from off the altar:

And he laid it upon my mouth,
and said, Lo, this hath touched thy lips; and thine iniquity is taken away, and thy sin purged.

Also I heard the voice of the Lord, saying, Whom shall I send, and who will go for us? Then said I, Here am I; send me.

And he said, Go, and tell this people, Hear ye indeed, but understand not; and see ye indeed, but perceive not.

Make the heart of this people fat, and make their ears heavy, and shut their eyes; lest they see with their eyes; and hear with their ears, and understand with their heart, and convert, and be healed.

Then said I, Lord, how long?
and he answered, Until the cities be wasted without inhabitant, and the houses without man, and the land be utterly desolate.

And the Lord have removed men far away, and there be great forsaking in the midst of the land.

But yet in it shall be a tenth, and it shall return, and shall be eaten: as a terebinth, and as an oak, whose substance is in them, when they cast their leaves: so the holy seed shall be the substance thereof.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

PHILOSOPHY

DR. JOHNSON once came upon an old class-fellow whom he had not seen for 40 years. His classmate had been living on a little farm of 60 acres and each day gloried more and more with the growing of grass, the tilling of the soil and the harvesting of his small crops.

Addressing his illustrious friend in the words of W. Robertson Nicoll, from whose book I get the story, he said: "You are a philosopher, Dr. Johnson. I have tried, too, in my time, to be a philosopher; but, I don't know how, cheerfulness was always breaking in!"

Hume, who had quite a reputation for being a philosopher, once was taken to task by a brother friend, who upbraided a man of his intellect for being a philosopher. He explained that he, too, had tried philosophy, but had given it up—"tired of it most confoundedly." "Pray, sir," asked Hume, "in what branch of philosophy did you employ your researches? What books did you read?" "Books?" replied his friend. "Nay, sir, I read no books, but used to sit whole forenoons a-yawning and poking the fire!"

Give it what name you will, each of us must have a philosophy of life and work it out. It's like religion to a man—something inborn and essential, no matter by what name it goes.

The other day it rained. It was a day that was bitter and uninviting. I drove out into it. My memory recalled days that were far worse, however, and so its unpleasantness was dismissed. The next day opened clear and cool, with a golden sun streaming warmth toward the earth, and I said that I had known few more perfect days at such a season. Yet there were far less in number, I feel sure, who praised that lovely day than damned the bad one!

I believe that the greatest philosophy anyone can have is to live at a time, to do one's best—and let everything else take care of itself. People do not get the most from the enjoyment of little things. They live in too much disappointment at not gaining the great things in life, whereas the great things are often the little things—and they can't realize it—until some stunning event brings it out.

The late Calvin Coolidge was an eminent example of a man who, through practicing a homely and simple philosophy of life, became great.

CHANGE OF MIND

Time was with pride I used to say:
"I hope to leave him rich some day."

I hope he'll never know the cares
Which I have had to bear."

And saying this, it seemed that I Believed that when I came to die,
My soul would swoon to be to know
My child was free from care.

Today I know parental pride
Was dreaming on its foolish side,
And building pictures fair to see,
But bitterly untrue.

Since when have sons to manhood grown
On private incomes of their own?
Since when have sons their merit proved
Without a task to do?

And so no more I shout aloud
From motives filial and proud;
I want to save my boy from pain
And doubt and loss and care.

No! No! My cry is this today:
I want to teach my boy the way
To stand to life and work and think
And bravely do his share.

BARTER SYSTEM GROWS POPULAR

150 Groups Organized To Promote Swapping As Aid To Unemployed.

By J. W. Brackett

New York (AP)—Unemployed America is making a new "money"—not silver coins or greenbacks—but scrip used to build up barter.

Products worth millions of dollars are being "swapped" in the United States and between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000 in some form of scrip money is now in circulation, according to the estimates of Jacob Baker, operations director of the Emergency Exchange association.

Many Groups Organized

About 150 groups are formally organized to facilitate this swapping which has sprung from the cross-roads to the status of a real aid to the unemployed.

In their further development, Baker and others interested in barter's extension envisage the possibility of nationwide interchange of goods—and possibly the use of the "moneys" of the various exchanges among themselves to aid the process. Other economists doubt the system will reach much beyond local boundaries.

Many of the 150 exchanges already are using scrip, other tokens, either to represent the goods themselves, or with a real money backing in the form of special stamps sold for cash.

The Emergency Exchange association was organized by a group of business men, economists, engineers, lawyers and industrial consultants, for the purpose of bringing together idle men and the "idle" goods which the men want but cannot get through lack of purchasing power.

Association Fosters Move

Among the organizers were John Kirkland Clark, president of the New York State Board of Bar Examiners; Leland Olds, assistant chairman of the New York State Power Authority; Stuart Chase, economist, and Frank Graham, Princeton university economist.

The association is aiding in the development of exchanges in the east; is correlating information for guidance of other organizers throughout the country, and ultimately hopes to provide for exchange of goods and services among exchanges in different localities throughout the nation.

Barter starts with the simple swapping of, for instance, wheat for flour; or a few hours labor for food. As more individuals seek to fill their needs in this manner, a group of them will organize mutual exchange for the purpose of finding all possible exchanges that exist in a neighborhood. To this exchange, individuals may bring food, and obtain the labor or other goods they need.

Thus in Los Angeles a jobless man went out to a farm and worked for a farmer for a day. For his work he received a sack of vegetables and foodstuffs—more than he could eat—so he gave some to his neighbors. From this and other similar happenings have developed 83 organized cooperative barter units, affecting 40,000 families in Los Angeles county.

In Inwood, New York, the unemployed got together and exchanged goods and services among themselves and with business people. They organized a mutual exchange. As it grew the organization of exchanges became rather difficult bookkeeping. To simplify matters, the exchange introduced its own scrip money, paid the laborers in scrip money, and persuaded grocers and others to accept it. This paper is redeemable in goods and services, and has no other value. There is no legal money in the transaction.

Unique Plan

In Hawarden, Iowa, the city government paid out $300 in scrip to the unemployed for road work. On the back of each note were 36 squares. Before each transaction the holder of the money had to fix a three-cent stamp, purchasable from the local government, before the money could pass.

When the money had been used 36 times, it could be redeemed for $1 in legal currency from the city government, the extra charge being for costs. If all the $300 turned over for 36 times, it would accomplish $10,800 worth of business.

Here, there was no barter, but a possible exchange of the movement, suggested by Baker, would be to add Hawarden's stamps to the barter tokens as used in Inwood. This gives the money double value—in goods, and in legal money. It could be exchanged at any time in full value for goods, and after a year in legal money if fully stamped.

INSIST ON--- Pasteurized Milk ---PUREST and SAFEST

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. in its publication, "The Family Food Supply," which it issues in the interest of the health and long life of its policy holders, gives the following statement:

"The Home Maker should plan her meals so that they will offer the right kind of food in the right quantity. In order to be sure that she is doing this, she should include:

"MILK—One quart a day for each child; one pint for each adult. This is the ideal. Never use less than one pint, however, for each child and a half pint for each adult. Milk is the best building food. It supplies fuel; it supplies minerals; it carries a good supply of VITAMINS A, B and G.

"Pasteurized Milk is safer than raw milk, because complete pasteurization kills the germs that cause tuberculosis, infantile diarrhea, septic sore throat, typhoid fever, diphtheria and scarlet fever.

"Milk should be covered and should be kept cold; that will keep it clean, sweet and free from strange flavors and odors."

Hollywood Sights & Sounds

By Robin Coons

Hollywood.—The old bromide to the contrary, comparisons are not always odious.

There is a pretty fair young actor out here who owes his place on the contract list to his willingness to invite comparison, and more importantly, to his keenness in arranging the comparison.

There was a leading lady, a prettier than capable actress, due for a test for a role. All the contract leading men, who admired her looks but did not care to be involved in a test that was sure to be as bad as her others, strangely found very important business to keep them away from the studio at the pre-arranged time.

But our young actor was around, and volunteered. In what others fled, he saw his chance.

"I know I'm not a very good actor, but I know I wouldn't have to be, with this girl," he said. "My hunch was right. She was so terrible that by contrast I looked superlative. They signed me!"

As things turned out, he had the goods to deliver once he had the contract, and he is progressing well.

Too Many Managers

The prize ring might have contributed a screen hero for "King of the Jungle" but for a managerial puzzle that discouraged the questing studio.

Among candidates considered was Max Baer, who had the physique and the appearance required. But it seemed there were more than half a dozen men who each declared that he alone was authorized to act as his agent in the matter. The fear of legal entanglements led the search farther—and finally Buster Crabbe measured up, as you know.

Contract Lists Fall Off

Movie observers are looking for a continued depletion of the major studio contract lists as a feature of the new movie year.

The overhead involved in carrying large numbers of players on the weekly salary working-or-not basis is one of the reasons for the change, the growth of the unit system of production in which talent is hired by the picture is another, but a third cause is the unwillingness of some of the players themselves to be tied down by long-term agreements.

Notable among these are stars such as Helen Hayes and Leslie Howard, who reserve time for the stage. There are, too, the featured players who are concerned about their futures and dislike the thorn under the weekly rose of pay—the realization that since they are being paid they are subject to assignment to roles for which they are unsuited.

Hollywood.—One of the ticklish tasks of today's scenarists is to imbue out-moded situations from "dated" plays with a modern spirit that will make them plausible instead of ridiculous to today's audiences.

Back in 1919 Zoe Akins had a play on Broadway with Ethel Barrymore playing the part of a woman of high birth who is outcast because cause back in England she was divorced. The play, "Deceit," was very successful and twice has been filmed, once with Corinne Griffith in the lead and again with Billie Dove.

Now it is to be a talkie, with Ann Harding starring.

Jane Murnin, who co-authored "Smilin' Through" and has been turnin' gout some of the better scripts on the Radio lot, has been given the job of "modernizing" a situation that was acceptable as recently as 14 years ago.

Times Have Changed

"Today," she says, "it would be ridiculous for us to offer our heroine as 'Deceit' simply because she was divorced. The modern audience would snicker at the idea. So we've had to go farther, and suggest more of a past that might really make her an outcast—without, however, losing audience sympathy for her."

Thus our blond Ann, who hitherto has been associated with roles of white respectability—even in "The Animal Kingdom," where she was mistress, she was wife according to the idea of the author, and in "Westward Passage," as I recall it, her marital sin was condoned—thus Ann assumes a character foreign to her type. She will be seen in brief one and give her husband England's only grounds for divorce.

Changing times and manners, Miss Murnin comments, have removed from the realm of authors' expedients the "Sudden Storm" that forces hero and heroine to spend the night together and thus be "compromised" in the eyes of the world. And what a situation that used to be.

People More Honest Now

"It served well in other times," she observes, "but today people are more honest and courageous, and no man or woman feels obliged to marry the girl or man in such circumstances. Common sense and honesty make the notion absurd."

Miss Murnin's next assignment will be "Little Women," which she assures us will be kept in its original period. Jo, who will be played by Katharine Hepburn, is as modern in thought as a girl of today.

LOOKING AROUND--

By Don Bee

Gettysburg academy's basketballers face two stiff tests this week, meeting the powerful Franklin and Marshall academy here Wednesday and playing Bloomsburg high at Bloomsburg Friday night. The combination of Plank and Spotts as forwards; Pitzer at center and Gorton and Robbins at guard worked particularly well against Tome school and it is likely that they will start Wednesday.

Two of the oldest rivals, Gettysburg high and Hanover high, will meet on the high school floor Friday night to resume their feud in basketball.

Coach Forney and his lads are trying to devise a means of stopping Kintzing. Hanover high's six-foot four-inch center. The brilliant record of the Orange and Black tribe is mainly due to the excellent work of this young giant and if the Ma-rooms are to continue their winning ways an effective method must be developed to stop his scoring.

A severe test faces the Gettysburg college dribblers Friday night when they battle the strong Mt. St. Mary's quintet on the latter's floor. Coach Malloy's cagers have turned in some fine performances this season, the most notable being their one-sided victory over Dickinson, at but no attempt will be made to "modernize" her speech.

pose the Wings that night, but the county league game is expected to be the real drawing power.

Thursday night the locals will play the St. Mary's club, of York, on the Hotel Gettysburg annex floor. All profits will be turned over to the local Boy Scout organization. Tickets are now being sold by the scouts. Arendtsville will play Biglerville in a county league game as the preliminary attraction.

A municipally owned light and water plant paid Lakeland, Fla., $404,476 during the fiscal year just closed.

ARE YOU NERVOUS, DIZZY?

MEADVILLE, Pa. — "I was rundown, lost weight and had no appetite. My nerves were bad. I rested poorly at night, my back ached, I had headaches, would become dizzy and felt weak and exhausted," said J. E. Fitch of 1133 West St. "I felt much better shortly after I started taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and after taking three bottles I was feeling fine again."

Acid stomach, indigestion, gas, biliousness and constipation cause the blood to be poisoned.

HAVE YOU HEARD—
ABOUT THE Boy WHO ROSE FROM the Fountain?

He started out as a soda clerk in a drug store. Then he became interested in the drug end of the business—worked nights, saved his money and put himself through school. And now he is a full-fledged pharmacist.

He knew that his ability to get ahead depended largely on his ability to save.
